

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Electrically conductive composition based on a polyamide matrix

The invention relates to a composition based on a polyamide matrix comprising electrically-conductive charges. Said composition can be prepared in order to produce plastic articles such as, for example, body parts in the automobile industry, having a good capacity for being painted using an electrostatic paint application method.